Politics Waxing Warm | Deck Hand is Drowned | Sensation in Arrests

POLITICIANS COMBINE TO SECURE CONTROL OF GOOD COUNTY OFFICES

Claimed Two Prominent Factions Have Scheme to Pull Things Their Own Way.

RELATIVES CANDIDATES

River District Offers the Greatest Field for Activity and Play for it Will be Made by United Forces.

A ripple of interest in political circles has been stirred throughout the county by the announcement that the Hallam and Carothers factions have combined and made a deal for the purpose of exercising a commanding influence in county politics. As all the county offices are to be filled this year there are some rich plums in prospect, and it is for the purpose of plucking some of the ripest Damsons that the new deal is alleged to have been made.

The Hallam faction, headed by John W. Hllaam, represents the old independent element of the county seat, and the Carothers faction, led by ex-Sheriff C. E. Carothers who, before he broke with former Congressman E. F. Acheson, was the latter's field marshall. The two factions for years were bitterly arraigned against each other, but now with the Republican party of the county in the condition of the late Edward Everett Hale's "Man Without a Country," the two factions are said to have decided that modern trust methods are better as a means of accopmlishment than battling in the hustings for the supremacy of leadership Hence the alleged combine.

Both Hallam and Carothers have candidates—relatives—they want to land in two of the best offices of the county. As these do not conflict, it is apparent that a conservation of resources would be more effective than single and separate effort. There will be vigorous opposition in each of the offices, but it is believed that by playing the other opposing candidates skillfully, and getting out candidates to oppose these in their own communities, thereby dividing their votes and strength, the original purpose can be carried out.

DEATH RESULTS FROM EXPLOSION

Monongahela Meat Man Dies at Hospital From Injuries

WIFE AND CHILD HURT

One fatality resulted from a gas explosion at Monongahela yesterday morning, when L. Parenti, a meat man, died last night at the Memorial Hospital. Death occurred at 10 o'clock, more than 12 hours after the accident. Parenti was cleaning up some rooms over his meat market, and without thinking, threw a lighted match on the floor. A terrific explosion of gas followed in which he was fatally hurt and his wife and baby in another room seriously injured. The building was practically destroyed.

RODERICK FAVORED FOR JOB

Mining Men Ask Governor Tener to Re-Appoint Him

MAKE CALL ON OLIVER

Mine inspectors throughout the State are urging Governor-elect John K. Tener to re appoint James E. Roderick, the present incumbent, Chief of the Department of Mines of the State. To that end delegation of inspectors were at the National Capital yesterday to confer with the Governor-elect. They took up the matter with Mr. Tener and presented their recommendation for the retention of Mr. Roderick. Mr. Tener was non committal, but told his visitors that he would be pleased to give the matter his earnest consideration.

Mr. Tener asked the inspectors for any suggestions they might have regarding legislation along the line of safety appliances for the miners. They discussed several matters with him and gave him their ideas of laws that should be enacted to further safegurd the miners. They also talked over the question of sinking surface lands over coal mines. The inspectors called upon Sentor Oliver.

Governor-elect Tener and Lieutenant Governor-elect Reynolds, at a conference yesterday decided to hand in their resignations as members of Congress from Pennsylvania, to take effect January 16, the day before their inaugurations into the highest State offices at Harrisburg.

DECK HAND OF CADET IS DROWNED IN DARK MONONGAHELA WATERS

Young Riverman Stumbles as He Walks Along Flat and is Thrown into River Near Monessen Steel Plant.

Unable to swim and drawn under by the suction of the water, Jack Reed, a deck hand of the steamer Cadet, was drowned in the river in front of he Pittsburg Steel company's plant at Monessen at about 11:30 o'clock last night. The body has not yet been recovered Reed and another deck hand were on the flats being towed upstream by the Cadet, when Reed stumbled on an obstruction and before he could save himself was thrown into the water. The suction of the water drew him under at once. He was unable to swim. The boat was stopped at once, and all possible effort made to locate the body in the dark waters, but all efforts were unavailing. The towboat finally continued on its way and the Monongahela River Consolidated Coal and Coke company, which owns the boat sent out a crew to search for the body. Reed lived in McKeesport. He was a young man probably between 25 and 30 years old.

ONLY THING TO DO WITH TREES IS CUT THEM DOWN

Forestry Department Advises Charleroi How to Care for Troublesome Sewer-Destroying Poplars

OTHER TREES WHICH MAKE GOOD SHADE

According to Robert S Conklin, Commissioner of Forestry, of Pennsylvania, there is only one thing to be done with Carolina poplars which line the streets of Charleroi, and which have been destroying sewers at wholesale rate, and that is to cut them down. Recently the borough clerk at the instance of the borough council wrote to Mr. Conklin and has just received a letter from him relative to the matter. The letter is as follows:

"Mr. Ira L. Nickeson,
Charleroi, Pa.

Dear Sir:—In reply to your letter relative to Carolina poplar shade trees, would say that there is only one thing to do with them, and that is to cut them down. They may be cut at any time In case sprouts come up, they can also be removed at any convenient time. As a matter of fact it might be best to dig around the roots and chop them off so that when the tree falls the stump will be removed

As for the best kind of shade trees, I would suggest Norway pine, maple, pin oak and yellow poplar. The Norway maple, perhaps is the most satisfactory of all Sugar maple is good, but a slow grower. The elm makes a good street tree, provided the streets are wide. If the treets are less than sitxy feet wide I would not advise the planting of this tree.

Under spearate cover we foward marked copy of our 1907 report.

Very truly yours
Robert S Conklin,
Commssion of Forestry.

Arrangements are being made for a meeting of council and citizens next Thursday, January 19, to discuss the matter.

WEALTHY FARMER DIES ON STREET

Centerville Man Expires While on Visit in Donora

Robert Ward, aged 70, a wealthy farmer of Centerville, this county, fell dead on the street in Donora yesterday from heart failure. Mr. Ward was born near California and resided in the eastern part of Washington county all his life. He was a member of the Methodist Episcopal church. His widow and five children survive.

Miss Almira Myers of Washington avenue has returned home from Wellsburgh, W. Va,. where she spent some time with Rev. A. M. Doak's family, formerly of Charleroi.

It is their present intention to remain in Washington as long as possible to assist their Republican collegues in legislative matters. Their retirement from the House makes two more vacancies in the Pennsylvania delegation, two other vacanices having been caused by the deaths of Congressmen Cook and Foulkrod.

PROSPECTS BRIGHT FOR CONVENTION

Annual Fireman's Gathering to be Held at Monongahela.

There are fine prospects for the firemen's convention to be held at Monongahela during the second week of August, according to Fire Marshal S. M. Dowan. He has been in consultation with W. H. Sharah, of Braddock, secretary of the Western Pennsylvania Firemen's Association, who came to Monongahela yesterday for the purpose of this conference. Numreous plans were talked over and a prorgam will be announced later.

May Enlarge Theatre

A new record of Sixth street property in Monessen was established by the sale this week of the lot and building which contains the Star Dairy Lunch, to W. A. McShaffrey for $4,800 by M. A. Marker. Being the first property above Mr. McShaffrey's Star theatre it is likely he is buying the lot with a view of enlarging his house in the future.

Mrs. John Hall left today for Portage, where she will visit friends.

CITIZENS ASK INVESTIGATION

Monessen Residents Ask Charges Against Officials Be Probed

WOMEN START THE AFFAIR

At the last meeting of the Monessen council Friday night a petition was presented signed by 74 citizens, asking for an official investigation of the conduct of the burgess. It is alleged that the borough executive is not properly enforcing the ordinances, particularly the health regulations, which has given rise to much dissatisfaction. No action was taken on the petition by council. Charges were also made in council against one of the policemen. The latter claims the charges are blackmail. An investigation will probably follow.

RUSSIANS OBSERVING CHRISTMAS

Today Big Holiday by the Old Julian Calender

HOLD CHURCH SERVICES

Today is the Russian Christmas, and Russians of Charleroi and vicinity are observing it by special services at St. John the Baptist Russian Orthodox church. Two masses, one of which is the high mass, of this morning feature the day. Besides the church services the Russians are generally observing the day.

Promply on the minute the Russian Christmas observance begins at midnight where worshipers assembled at the church and for two hours a mid night mass was held. Then after several hours of rest at 11 o'clok this morning the high mass was held

Christmas is one of the most important days in the Russian calender, and is observed always with great pomp and ceremony by the churches. All or nearly all Russian churches in America are closely connected with and many of them are partly supported by the Russian government. The difference in the dates of Christmas is due to the Russian observance of the Julian calendar, which brings Christmas about 13 days later than the Gregorian calendar, universally observed throughout Christendom, with a few exceptions.

Cnarge of Illegal Liquor Selling Entered Against Fourteen Business Men.

TEN WARRANTS SERVED

Troop of State Constabulary Swoops Down Quietly on Alleged Violators of Liquor Law.

Prue and Paul Fightner, who worked up the cases, and assisted in making the arrests, remained until this morning to sreve warrants upon four others who are charged with the same violations.

Detectives have been in Monessen for the past two weeks, it is stated, working up the cases against the men. They secured conclusive evidence, it is stated, that the alleged offenders shipped in large quantities of beer and whiskey every pay day which was disposed of upon demand When sufficient evidence had been gathered, it was turned over to District Attorney William T. Dom, of Westmoreland county and he made the informations.

All the business men upon whom the warrants were served are: Antonia Grazinona, Joseph Chabchi, Frank Stephana, Frank Pulo, John Sakey, John Check, Frank Eisenberg, Mrs. Rosa Blotto, Mike Cheinkey, and Mike Giba. Circumstances Alter Cases.

Moved by some remarks of former Congressman E. F. Acheson through the latter's Washington Observer concerning the recant State campaign and political affair generally, Editor Henry P. Snyder of the Connellsville Courier proceeds to elucidate the question, "When is a boss not a boss?" thusly:

"Editor Acheson was a member of Congress for a number of years, and he was willing to be again, but the fates willed otherwise and Editor Acheson was defeated. Prior to his defeat he at times sustained intimate political relations with the late Senator Quay, who was reputed in some circles to be a Boss of great renown, at other times he transferred this intimate relation to the late Christopher Lyman Magee, another reputed Boss. In the meantime, he was credited with being something of a Boss himself, especially in Washington county.

"All this, however, was while Editor Acheson was a Congressman. Since he has had the misfortune to suffer defeat and has been delegated to the ranks, he has ceased to be Boss or to have any commerce with the Bosses. He denounes Senator Penrose as a Boss and calls the Republican organization the Gang. He is himself a Leader of the Insurgent movement, better known in Pennsylvania as the Keystone Party.

"This brings back to the original question, When is a Boss not a Boss? When do we shed the gnominious appellation, cast aside the obloquy, rise erect in dignity and virtue and become the more or less Peerless Leader?

"The answer seems plain. This transformation occurs at the precise period when he fails to remain an officeholder, or in other words when he is transferred from the Ins to the Outs.

"In the light of this explanation, intelligent voters will be able to understand what constitutes a Boss and what makes a Leader, who compose the Gang and who the People."

Mr. Acheson one time in a newspaper interview, in explaining his former political domination in Washington county, stated that the political coherts needed a leader, and he, being in a willing frame of mind, "Woke up one morning and found himself a boss." In later years he woke up one morning and found himself not a boss. Hence the different attitude at the present time.

Can't Deliver the Goods

Reports from the county seat are to the effect that a political combine has been effected for purposes of offense, defense and acquisition, so far as personal interests are concerned. Two notable factions which have heretofore been antagonistic are said to have gotten together in the interests of certain candidates for county office to be chosen at the June primary, and by pooling and uniting resources at home and dividing opposition abroad, hope to accomplish their ends.

In former times before the people voted for the nominations of candidates a combination like this might have promised success, but now such an effort cannot be otherwise than an unknown quantity. Now it takes votes to win, and the other fellow has just as good a chance to secure these as the would-be political boss or combine. Since the adoption of the uniform primary election law it has been demonstrated time and again that the candidate who gets out and circulates among the voters and wins their good graces has a better chance of winning than the one who is supposed to have the backing and influence of others, and who resorts to intrigue and manipulation. The personal qualifications of the candidates also cut a considerable figure in the campaign.

A political combine nowadays may be more effective in disbursing money and energy, but it has no postive assurance that it can deliver the goods

POLITICANS COMBINE TO SECURE CONTROL OF GOOD COUNTY OFFICES

greatest field for activity in that line. This district is sure to turn up candidates a-plenty, and if too many don't go after the same nomination, it stands a good chance of winning out. This has been demonstrated by the candidates who have won out in the recent contests—Congressman and Governor-elect J. K. Tener Assemblyman Chas. A. Bentley, Assemblyman Wm. Feeney and County Controller John H Moffitt. As a matter of fact the county seat politicians are dead sore on the river district, and in addition to raising the campaign cry, that "the river district has had its share," quiet efforts will be made to get out opposing candidates for every office for which a river candidate may aspire

This, however, is a game that others can play, and it is rumored that the same thing will be worked at the county seat and elsewhere in the county. In this game of mate and checkmate that is to be played for the Republican nominations, the hottest and most uncertain kind of a fight is indicated. The Keystone party may also be skillfully injected into the fight, and after the nominations are made there is talk that a fusion of the latter element with the Democratic party is possible. There will certainly be something doing in politics in the county before many more weeks roll around.

MENTAL DISCORD.

An Uncompromising Enemy to Happiness and to Health.

It is a law that every state of mind, whether good or bad, affects every cell in the system and is outpictured in the body, says Orison Swett Marden in Success Magazine. We are thus the arbiters of our fate through our thoughts, emotions and passions.

The time will come when we shall know how to refresh ourselves by mental chemistry—that is, by holding in our minds the antidotes of the things that have wearied us or vexed us, by holding the mental attitude which will neutralize the thought enemies that have thrown our bodies into confusion.

There is nothing so deadly to happiness as mental discord It paralyzes the thinking ability and destroys the power of concentration and effectiveness.

All diseases and sickness of whatever kind are the outpicturing of some form of discord. If the mind is kept as happy as possible it is difficult for discord to get a foothold in the body. A happy mind is the best possible health producer, disease killer and discord destroyer.

For centuries man's happiness was looked upon by many earnest, thinking people as a condition largely beyond his control. They seemed to think that it depended mostly upon the temperament one happened to develop and that there were other things of so much more importance that we should not consider it too seriously or take precious time to cultivate it directly.

We are beginning to find, however, that even as an economical investment it pays immensely to make a business of being happy and being just as good to ourselves as possible, although not in a selfish way. We could not be good to ourselves in the higher sense by being selfish.

Her Evidence.

"I had a colored woman before me as a complaining witness," said a criminal court judge. "She had a man held for trial by a city magistrate on the charge that he had attacked her with a pair of scissors. 'He mout' near gouge mah eye out, jedge,' she said to me. 'Jes' come at me lak a lion, he did, a-roarin', suh. He poke me in de face wiv dem scissors, jedge, not once, but for four or five times. He jes' cut up my face lak it was a yahd of ribbon, jedge. The magistrate what held him to dis heah court says he nevah did hear tell of no more dang'ous man.'

"Well, I looked her over. She had a wide, smooth, yellow face that didn't have a mark on it. I told her to repeat her story, and she went all over it again, telling how the man had slashed her face with that pair of scissors.

"'But, madam,' I said, 'there isn't a mark on your face.'

"'Marks!' said she indignantly. 'Marks! What I care for marks, lem me ask you dat? I got witnesses, I tell you.'"—New York Cor. Cincinnati Times-Star.

She Had Courage.

A self possessed young woman who knew no French strolled into one of the larger downtown cafes. She spoke to the waiter in that decisive tone which distinguishes the initiated and glanced over the French bill of fare with the nonchalant air of a Parisienne.

"I'll have," she began firmly as she plunged into the sea of French dishes—"I'll have—let me see. Oh, yes, I'll have some bisque tortoni, a sultana roll, pommes de terre and a little of that fromage. And, garcon, you might as well bring me a cup of coffee."

The waiter gasped. He started to speak, but the young woman froze him with one of those icy stares peculiar to the thoroughly sophisticated.

And the order arrived—two kinds of ices, boiled potatoes and a piece of cheese. But she ate it as if she had been used to that sort of diet all her life.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Stories on Doctors.

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle told several good stories of old fashioned practitioners he knew. There was one man, he said, who never used to wash out the half emptied bottles returned to him, but emptied them into one huge jar, from which he dispensed this mixture of medicines to his more obscure patients. "It is like grapeshot," he said; "one of them is sure to hit." There was another man who used to say, "When my patients are alive I don't know what is the matter with them and when they die I don't know whether they are dead." That was like the medical man who said to a lady whose husband he had been attending, "Madam, I have a very strong belief that your husband is dead, but if it is your wish I have no objection to a consultation."

Cute Little Girl.

One day while Katherine's mother was ill a cup of beef tea was prepared for her, but Katherine fancied it and drank almost all of it. Her father was about to scold her when her mother said:

"Never mind; it does me just as much good to see her drink it."

Shortly after this a dose of castor oil was prepared for Katherine, and she poured it into her doll's mouth.

"Why Katherine," said her astonished mother, "what did you do that for?"

"That's all right," Katherine replied, "it will do me just as much good if she drinks it."—Boston Herald.

The Danger of Criticism.

If you simply cannot help criticising at least be careful in selecting your victim.

A magazine editor to whom O. Henry had promised a story many times without delivering it sat down one day and wrote him thus:

"My Dear O. Henry—If I do not receive that story from you by noon today I am going to put on my No. 11 shoes and come down and kick you down your own stairs. I never fail to keep my promises."

Whereupon O. Henry replied:

"I, too, would keep my promises if I could do all my work with my feet."—Chicago Tribune.

The Battle of a Week.

The battle of a week was the great conflict at Tours in which Charles Martel overthrew the Saracens, A. D. 732. The members of the Saracen army are variously estimated at from 400,000 to 700,000, and the historians say that 375,000 were killed on the field. It is suspected that these figures are a gross exaggeration, but it is certain that few battles of history have been either so bloody or so decisive.

In the Mining Business.

"I think you said, Rastus, that you had a brother in the mining business in the west?"

"Yeh, boss, that's right."

"What kind of mining—gold mining, silver mining, copper mining?"

"No, sah, none o' those; calcimining."—Everybody's.

AMONG THE THEATRES

The Palace—Charleroi.

One of Richard Harding Davis' New York character stories, "Hefty Burke," was charmingly shown in photoplay by an Edison film at the Palace Theatre this week. "Hefty" Burke, a clean cut young Irish-American workingman, wins the affections of Mamie, a pretty young working girl, at an East Side ball. There are other suitors for Mamie's favor, but she prefers "Hefty," who lives in a water front boarding house. The latter, strolling along the wharf, rescues a handsome young central American senoretta, who falls overboard from a steamer loading for a cargo for her destination On board the vessel "Hefty" discovers that a filibustering expedition is equipping for a revolution, which is contrary to the neutrality laws of the United States. "Hefty" is pledged to silence, and the commander, who is the father of the senoretta rescued by "Hefty" follows the latter to his boarding house to induce him to join the expedition. "Hefty" refuses It transpires that a reward of $5,000 is offered for information of the expedition, of which "Hefty" has told Mamie. The latter, jealous of the senoretta, tells of the reward to one of her other admirers, who starts out to inform the harbor police of the expedition Mamie learns of her mistake, and tells "Hefty" what she has done. The latter rushes to the dock, and engages the attention of the would-be informer until the vessel clears the harbor Louis Brusa, in illustrated songs, continue to entertain, as well as the excellent orchestra, which is one of the strong features of this popular theatre.

The Coyle—Charleroi

Good plays, like wine, improves with age. This is certainly true of that marvellously successful melodrama "Human Hearts" which comes to the Coyle Theatre, Thursday, January 12. The company to be seen in the play this season comprises all of last year's favorites, and wherever a part could be improved upon, the change has been made, and it is promised that never before has this beautiful play been so well presented. "Human Hearts" gives a pure, wholesome lesson that touches the heartstrings in the pathetic scenes and excites the risibilities in the humorous ones. The pathos and comedy are so well blended that the audience is in tears one moment and convulsed with laughter the next. The scenic equipment will be perfect in every detail, so it is said, and the management has done everything possible to insure a first-class perforance.

New Duquesne—Pittsburg.

That big footlight success, "In the Bishop's Carriage," which Channing Pollock dramatized from the celebrated romance of the same name by Miriam Michelson, is to be the highly interesting attraction at the Duquesne Theatre, next week. In this clever drama the Harry Davis Stock Players will offer a play that combines the exciting situations of robbery and midnight burglary, which made "Raffles" so intensely appealing, with the deep heart interest of the redemption of the soul of a young girl thief, which made "Leah Kleschna" so notable in its interpretaton by Mrs. Fiske. Nance Olden, the heroine of "In the Bishop's Carriage" is the victim of cruel circumstances. An orphan girl, she has been brought up in such a way as to become the associate of the thieves and crooks of a big city and she fails to realize that her "profession" is not justified by events. She has a pal, a big brother, in Tom Dorgan. But a new interest suddenly comes into her life, and all through trying to escape the police, after picking a pocket of a watch, by dodging into the carriage of the Bishop. She learns for the first time that honesty is the best policy, but she finds it out through love. A young lawyer named Latimer discovers the secrets of her life and finally redeems her from her unhappy condition as a social outcast.

Julia Dean created the role of Nance Olden in the original production of "In The Bishop's Carriage," and Jessie Busley, (now with the New Theatre Company) starred in the part throughout the country Helen Ware originated the part of the "tough girl," Mag Monaghan. In this dramatization of Miss Michelson's clever story, Channing Pollock has placed all the chief incidents and figures before the footlights with as deft skill as he did "The Pit" for Wilton Lackaye.

The Alvin—Pittsburg

Of all the plays in recent years dealing with detectives and thieves, none seems to have hit the popular fancy as well as Paul Armstrong's "Alias Jimmy Valentine" to be seen at the Alvin Theatre next week. The reason for this, no doubt, lies in the fact that "Alias Jimmy Valentine" has been sincerely converted through the love of a good girl, and his adventures in the play deal with his endeavors to evade the detectives and police who want him for what he has done. In other words, the audience, sympathizing with one who has been a crook, is not condoning his offenses, but is encouraging him in his efforts towards reformation The first act is laid in the warden's office of Sing Sing prison, and is a true, engrossing picture of a real prison life "Alias Jimmy Valentine," the only man in America who could open a bank vault without tools or the combination, merely by the sense of touch, is serving a ten years' sentence for assault on a National Bank. Having been fortunate enough to render inestimable service to a group of influential people, he wins the gubernatorial pardon Once out of prison, Jimmy takes another name gets a job as assistant cashier of a bank, and lives an honest life.

"Alias Jimmy Valentine" has the distinction of a two years' run at Wallack's Theatre, New York.

The Grand—Pittsburg

A definition of the word "vaudeville" is illumingly expressed by a glance through the program arranged for next week, beginning Monday afternoon, January 9, at the Grand. The various numbers in their individual variety and artistry and their collective strength epitomize the world's best vaudeville

For example, Lillian Shaw, the gifted character comedian and singer, is among the artists engaged. Miss Shaw has no peer in her particular line of entertaining.

Edwin Stevens, supported by Tina Marshall, will appear in "A Night Off." This is a quaint, delicate little sketch concerning an old bachelor's affection for his young ward. Charles Semon, whose altitudeous attention justifies the descriptive title of "The narrow fellow," will once more amuse and entertain with his monologue music

Marshall Mongtomrey, the artistic ventriloquist, is coming for his maiden engagement in this city. Mr. Montgomery is generally referred to as being in a class with the Great Lester, which is tantamount to placing his among the world's greatest ventriloquial practioners.

Herzog's beautiful horses from the New York Hippodrome will be seen in an advanced exposition of high school manpevers.

Rice, Sully and Scot are a trio of acrobats who will cutup comic capers on horizontal bars. Moving pictures and a number of other high-class specialtites complete the bill.

Otis Skinner is a stage creator in the highest sense of the word. Last season he enhanced his fine group of stage protraits by a highly original type, the loquacious barn stormer in Booth Tarkington's play "Your Humble Servant." This was a modern and up-to date piece of stage realism, but on his forthcoming appearance he will return to the romantic type of drama in which he gained his earliest renown as a star. In his new play, "Sire" he will impersonate an adventure and jack-of-all trades, Roulette by name, who poses as the Lost Dauphin, Louis XVII in his matirity. Playgoers who have admired Otis Skinner's previous characteizations are sure to find his latest creation equally delightful.

REINDEER IN LAPLAND.

They Furnish the People With Shelter, Clothing and Food.

Some people have said that the reindeer of the northern regions is to the inhabitants of those countries what the horse, cow and sheep together are to the dwellers in southern lands, and very probably they are right. What would the Laplander be were he deprived of his favorite? How could he travel without his pair of reindeer harnessed to his sledge?

The reindeer has large black hoofs, behind which are false or secondary hoofs; the result is that when running they make a clattering sound, which may be heard a good distance away The reindeer has much endurance and takes a long journey without seeming tired, though it is only about four and a half feet in height and not very strong. Its horns are long and slender, with branched, rounded antlers, but they are not much used in combat, like those of some other deer.

The largest reindeer are found where the weather is coldest, and their color is lighter. Usually it is brown and white, but in the case of old animals the hair is sometimes quite white. From the skin of the reindeer the Laplanders get not only their clothes, but also bedding and tents; the milk is drunk and made into cheese and the flesh is also good to eat, the tongue and haunches being particularly liked. Pemmican, an important article of food, is made by pouring fat over the pounded meat and mixing them well together.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

BRAINY BABY.

John Stuart Mill Was a Genius at Three Years of Age.

At three years of age John Stuart Mill began the study of Greek, with "arithmetic as an evening relaxation"

At eight he began Latin, Euclid and algebra and had to act as tutor to the younger children He was a stern and efficient tutor

At twelve he began scholastic logic and political economy—the latter his main lifework.

At fourteen, while paying a long visit to Sir Samuel Bentham in southern France, he learned French as a relaxation from studying two or three hours before breakfast, five hours between breakfast and dinner and two or three in the evening Being for the time master of his own hours and not subject to a stern father, he took lessons also in his spare hours in music, singing, dancing, fencing and riding, but never became proficient

At sixteen Mill could speak in debate with adults with ease and freedom At eighteen he contributed to the Westminster Review At twenty one he was made assistant in the India office and received a large salary for those days

But Mill was bald at twenty-two He did not marry until he was forty-five He himself said: "I never was a boy It is better to let nature have its own way"

Donora Proud to be Third Town in Washington County

Donora, whose census was announced last week, justly takes great pride in being the third largest borough in Washington county. Washington ranks first and Charleroi second. Pushing Charleroi out of its envied position as second in valuation in the county, the industrial town of down the river has fastened upon itself the title "The Little Gaint of the Monongahela."

When the last census was taken in 1900 Donora was being projected and surveyed. The few inhabitants at that time were enumerated as part of Carrol township. It grew with such rapidity that in 1902 there were 5,082 persons in the town. Yet Donora is not a "mushroom" town It is a stable, progressive community, with one of the largest steel and wire plants in several States within its boundaries. This is the American Steel and Wire company's plant. Donora's progressiveness is shown by the accompanying cuts. The population of the town is now 8,174 persons. Many from other towns are employed at the large factory there.

POLITICIANS COMBINE TO SECURE CONTROL OF GOOD COUNTY OFFICES

Claimed Two Prominent Factions Have Scheme to Pull Things Their Own Way.

RELATIVES CANDIDATES

River District Offers the Greatest Field for Activity and Play for it Will be Made by United Forces.

A ripple of interest in political circles has been stirred throughout the county by the announcement that the Hallam and Carothers factions have combined and made a deal for the purpose of exercising a commanding influence in county politics. As all the county offices are to be filled this year there are some rich plums in prospect, and it is for the purpose of plucking some of the ripest Damsons that the new deal is alleged to have been made.

The Hallam faction, headed by John W. Hilaam, represents the old independent element of the county seat, and the Carothers faction, led by ex-Sheriff C. E. Carothers who, before he broke with former Congressman E. F. Acheson, was the latter's field marshall. The two factions for years were bitterly arraigned against each other, but now with the Republican party of the county in the condition of the late Edward Everett Hale's "Man Without a Country," the two factions are said to have decided that modern trust methods are better as a means of accopmlishment than battling in the hustings for the supremacy of leadership Hence the alleged combine.

Both Hallam and Carothers have candidates—relatives—they want to land in two of the best offices of the county. As these do not conflict, it is apparent that a conservation of resources would be more effective than single and separate effort. There will be vigorous opposition in each of the offices, but it is believed that by playing the other opposing candidates skillfully, and getting out candidates to oppose these in their own communities, thereby dividing their votes and strength, the original purpose can be carried out.

The river district offers the

RODERICK FAVORED FOR JOB

Mining Men Ask Governor Tener to Re-Appoint Him

MAKE CALL ON OLIVER

Mine inspectors throughout the State are urging Governor-elect John K. Tener to re appoint James E. Roderick, the present incumbent, Chief of the Department of Mines of the State. To that end delegation of inspectors were at the National Capital yesterday to confer with the Governor-elect. They took up the matter with Mr. Tener and presented their recommendation for the retention of Mr. Roderick. Mr. Tener was non committal, but told his visitors that he would be pleased to give the matter his earnest consideration.

Mr. Tener asked the inspectors for any suggestions they might have regarding legislation along the line of safety appliances for the miners. They discussed several matters with him and gave him their ideas of laws that should be enacted to further safegurd the miners. They also talked over the question of sinking surface lands over coal mines. The inspectors called upon Sentor- Oliver.

Governor-elect Tener and Lieutenant Governor-elect Reynolds, at a conference yesterday decided to hand in their resignations as members of Congress from Pennsylvania, to take effect January 16, the day before their inaugurations into the highest State offices at Harrisburg.

DECK HAND OF CADET IS DROWNED IN DARK MONONGAHELA WATERS

Young Riverman Stumbles as He Walks Along Flat and is Thrown into River Near Monessen Steel Plant.

Unable to swim and drawn under by the suction of the water, Jack Reed, a deck hand of the steamer Cadet, was drowned in the river in front of he Pittsburg Steel company's plant at Monessen at about 11:30 o'clock last night. The body has not yet been recovered Reed and another deck hand were on the flats being towed upstream by the Cadet, when Reed stumbled on an obstruction and before he could save himself was thrown into the water. The suction of the water drew him under at once. He was unable to swim. The boat was stopped at once, and all possible effort made to locate the body in the dark waters, but all efforts were unavailing. The towboat finally continued on its way and the Monongahela River Consolidated Coal and Coke company, which owns the boat sent out a crew to search for the body. Reed lived in McKeesport. He was a young man probably between 25 and 30 years old.

ONLY THING TO DO WITH TREES IS CUT THEM DOWN

Forestry Department Advises Charleroi How to Care for Troublesome Sewer-Destroying Poplars

OTHER TREES WHICH MAKE GOOD SHADE

According to Robert S Conklin, Commissioner of Forestry, of Pennsylvania, there is only one thing to be done with Carolina poplars which line the streets of Charleroi, and which have been destroying sewers at wholesale rate, and that is to cut them down. Recently the borough clerk at the instance of the borough council wrote to Mr. Conklin and has just received a letter from him relative to the matter. The letter is as follows:

"Mr. Ira L. Nickeson,
Charleroi, Pa.

Dear Sir:—In reply to your letter relative to Carolina poplar shade trees, would say that there is only one thing to do with them, and that is to cut them down. They may be cut at any time In case sprouts come up, they can also be removed at any convenient time. As a matter of fact it might be best to dig around the roots and chop them off so that when the tree falls the stump will be removed

As for the best kind of shade trees, I would suggest Norway plane, maple, pin oak and yellow poplar. The Norway maple, perhaps is the most satisfactory of all Sugar maple is good, but a slow grower. The elm makes a good street tree, provided the streets are wide. If the streets are less than sitxy feet wide I would not advise the planting of this tree.

Under spearate cover we foward marked copy of our 1907 report.

Very truly yours
Robert S Conklin,
Commssion of Forestry.

Arrangements are being made for a meeting of council and citizens next Thursday, January 19, to discuss the matter.

WEALTHY FARMER DIES ON STREET

Centerville Man Expires While on Visit in Donora

Robert Ward, aged 70, a wealthy farmer of Centerville, this county, fell dead on the street in Donora yesterday from heart failure. Mr. Ward was born near California and resided in the eastern part of Washington county all his life. He was a member of the Methodist Episcopal church. His widow and five children survive.

Miss Almira Myers of Washington avenue has returned home from Wellsburgh, W. Va,. where she spent some time with Rev. A. M. Doak's family, formerly of Charleroi.

It is their present intention to remain in Washington as long as possible to assist their Republican colleagues in legislative matters. Their retirement from the House makes two more vacancies in the Pennsylvania delegation, two other vacancies having been caused by the deaths of Congressmen Cook and Poulkrod.

PROSPECTS BRIGHT FOR CONVENTION

Annual Fireman's Gathering to be Held at Monongahela.

There are fine prospects for the firemen's convention to be held at Monongahela during the second week of August, according to Fire Marshal S. M. Dowan. He has been in consultation with W. H. Sharah, of Braddock, secretary of the Western Pennsylvania Firemen's Association, who came to Monongahela yesterday for the purpose of this conference. Numreous plans were talked over and a prorgam will be announced later.

May Enlarge Theatre

A new record of Sixth street property in Monessen was established by the sale this week of the lot and building which contains the Star Dairy Lunch, to W. A. McShaffrey for $4,800 by M. A. Marker. Being the first property above Mr. McShaffrey's Star theatre it is likely he is buying the lot with a view of enlarging his house in the future.

Mrs. John Hall left today for Portage, where she will visit friends.

CITIZENS ASK INVESTIGATION

Monessen Residents Ask Charges Against Officials Be Probed

WOMEN START THE AFFAIR

At the last meeting of the Monessen council Friday night a petition was presented signed by 74 citizens, asking for an official investigation of the conduct of the burgess. It is alleged that the borough executive is not properly enforcing the ordinances, particularly the health regulations, which has given rise to much dissatisfaction. No action was taken on the petition by council. Charges were also made in council against one of the policemen. The latter claims the charges are blackmail. An investigation will probably follow.

RUSSIANS OBSERVING CHRISTMAS

Today Big Holiday by the Old Julian Calender

HOLD CHURCH SERVICES

Today is the Russian Christmas, and Russians of Charleroi and vicinity are observing it by special services at St. John the Baptist Russian Orthodox church. Two masses, one of which is the high mass, of this morning feature the day. Besides the church services the Russians are generally observing the day.

Promply on the minute the Russian Christmas observance begins at midnight where worshipers assembled at the church and for two hours a mid night mass was held. Then after several hours of rest at 11 o'clok this morning the high mass was held

Christmas is one of the most important days in the Russian calender, and is observed always with great pomp and ceremony by the churches. All or nearly all Russian churches in America are closely connected with and many of them are partly supported by the Russian government. The difference in the dates of Christmas is due to the Russian observance of the Julian calendar, which brings Christmas about 13 days later than the Gregorian calendar, universally observed throughout Christendom, with a few exceptions.

Circumstances Alter Cases.

Moved by some remarks of former Congressman E. F. Acheson through the latter's Washington Observer concerning the recent State campaign and political affair generally, Editor Henry P. Snyder of the Connellsville Courier proceeds to elucidate the question, "When is a boss not a boss?" thusly:

"Editor Acheson was a member of Congress for a number of years, and he was willing to be again, but the fates willed otherwise and Editor Acheson was defeated. Prior to his defeat he at times sustained intimate political relations with the late Senator Quay, who was reputed in some circles to be a Boss of great renown, at other times he transferred this intimate relation to the late Christopher Lyman Magee, another reputed Boss. In the meantime, he was credited with being something of a Boss himself, especially in Washington county.

"All this, however, was while Editor Acheson was a Congressman. Since he has had the misfortune to suffer defeat and has been delegated to the ranks, he has ceased to be Boss or to have any commerce with the Bosses. He denounces Senator Penrose as a Boss, and calls the Republican organization the Gang. He is himself a Leader of the insurgent movement, better known in Pennsylvania as the Keystone Party.

"This brings back to the original question, 'When is a Boss not a Boss?' When do [illegible] shed their gnominous appearance, cast aside the objequy, rise [illegible] in dignity and virtue and become the more or less [illegible]

"The answer seems plain. This transformation occurs at the precise period when he fails to remain an officeholder, or in other words when he is transferred from the Ins to the Outs.

"In the light of this explanation, intelligent voters will be able to understand what constitutes a Boss and what makes a Leader, who compose the Gang and who the People."

Mr. Acheson one time in a newspaper interview, in explaining his former political domination in Washington county, stated that the political coherts needed a leader, and he, being in a willing frame of mind, "Woke up one morning and found himself a boss." In later years he woke up one morning and found himself cot a boss. Hence the different attitude at the present time.

Can't Deliver the Goods

Reports from the county seat are to the effect that a political combine has been effected for purposes of offense, defense and acquisition, so far as personal interests are concerned. Two notable factions which have heretofore been antagonistic are said to have gotten together in the interests of certain candidates for county office to be chosen at the June primary, and by pooling and uniting resources at home and dividing opposition abroad, hope to accomplish their ends.

In former times before the people voted for the nominations of candidates a combination like this might have promised success, but now such an effort cannot be otherwise than an unknown quantity. Now it takes votes to win, and the other fellow has just as good a chance to secure these as the would-be political boss or combine. Since the adoption of the uniform primary election law it has been demonstrated time and again that the candidate who gets out and circulates among the voters and wins their good graces has a better chance of winning than the one who is supposed to have the backing and influence of others, and who resorts to intrigue and manipulation. The personal qualifications of the candidates also cut a considerable figure in the campaign.

A political combine nowadays may be more effective in disbursing money and energy, but it has no postive assurance that it can deliver the goods

greatest field for activity in that line this district is sure to turn up candidates a-plenty and if too many don't go after the same nomination, to stand a good chance of winning out. This has been demonstrated by the candidates who have come out in the recent contests [illegible] and Governor-elect [illegible] Assemblyman Chas. A. Bentley, Assemblyman Wm. Feeney and County Controller John H Morrell. As matter of fact the county seat politicians are dead sore on the river district, and in addition to raising the campaign cry, that "the river district has had its share," quiet efforts will be made to get out opposing candidates for every office for which a river candidate may aspire

This, however, is a game that others can play, and it is rumored that the same thing will be worked at the county seat and elsewhere in the county. In this game of mate and checkmate that is to be played for the Republican nominations, the hottest and most uncertain kind of a fight is indicated. The Keystone party may also be skillfully injected into the fight, and after the nominations are made there is talk that a fusion of the latter element with the Democratic party is possible. There will certainly be something doing in politics in the county before many more weeks roll around.

MENTAL DISCORD.

An Uncompromising Enemy to Happiness and to Health.

It is a law that every state of mind, whether good or bad, affects every cell in the system and is outpictured in the body, says Orison Swett Marden in Success Magazine We are thus the arbiters of our fate through our thoughts, emotions and passions

The time will come when we shall know how to refresh ourselves by mental chemistry—that is, by holding in our minds the antidotes of the things that have wearied us or vexed us, by holding the mental attitude which will neutralize the thought enemies that have thrown our bodies into confusion

There is nothing so deadly to happiness as mental discord It paralyzes the thinking ability and destroys the power of concentration and effectiveness.

All diseases and sickness of whatever kind are the outpicturing of some form of discord If the mind is kept as happy as possible it is difficult for discord to get a foothold in the body. A happy mind is the best possession, health producer, disease killer and discord destroyer.

For centuries man's happiness was looked upon by many earnest thinking people as a condition largely beyond his control. They seemed to think that it depended mostly upon the temperament one happened to develop and that there were other things of so much more importance that we should not consider it too seriously or take precious time to cultivate it directly

We are beginning to find, however, that even as an economical investment it pays immensely to make a business of being happy and being just as good to ourselves as possible, although not in a selfish way. We could not be good to ourselves in the higher sense by being selfish.

Her Evidence.

"I had a colored woman before me as a complaining witness," said a criminal court judge. "She had a man held for trial by a city magistrate on the charge that he had attacked her with a pair of scissors. 'He mont' near gouge mah eye out, jedge,' she said to me. 'Jes' come at me lak a hon, he did, a-roarin', sah. He poke me in de face wif dem scissors, jedge, not once but for four or five times He jes' cut up my face lak it was a yahd of ribbon, jedge. The magistrate what held him to dis heah court says he nevah did hear tell of no more dangerous man.'

"Well, I looked her over. She had a wide, smooth, yellow face that didn't have a mark on it. I told her to repeat her story, and she went all over it again, telling how the man had slashed her face with that pair of scissors

"'But, madam,' I said, 'there isn't a mark on your face.'

"'Marks!' said she indignantly. 'Marks! What I care for marks lem me ask you dat? I got witnesses, I tell you.'"—New York Cor. Cincinnati Times-Star.

She Had Courage.

A self possessed young woman who knew no English but [illegible] the larger downtown cafes She spoke to the waiter in that decisive tone which distinguishes the initiated and glanced over the French bill of fare with the nonchalant air of a Parisienne

"I'll have," she began firmly as she plunged into the sea of French dishes—"I'll have—let me see Oh yes, I'll have some bisque tortoni, a sultana roll, pommes de terre and a little of that fromage And, garcon, you might as well bring me a cup of coffee"

The waiter gasped. He started to speak, but the young woman froze him with one of those icy stares peculiar to the thoroughly sophisticated.

And the order arrived—two kinds of ices, boiled potatoes and a piece of cheese. But she ate it as if she had been used to that sort of diet all her life.—Cleveland Plain Dealer

Stories on Doctors.

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle told several good stories of old fashioned practitioners he knew There was one man, he said, who never used to wash out the half emptied bottles returned to him, but emptied them into one huge jar, from which he dispensed this mixture of medicines to his more obscure patients. "It is like grapeshot," he said, "one of them is sure to hit." There was another man who used to say, 'When my patients are alive I don't know what is the matter with them and when they die I don't know whether they are dead." That was like the medical man who said to a lady whose husband he had been attending, "Madam, I have a very strong belief that your husband is dead, but if it is your wish I have no objection to a consultation."

Cute Little Girl.

One day while Katherine's mother was ill a cup of beef tea was prepared for her, but Katherine fancied it and drank almost all of it Her father was about to scold her when her mother said:

"Never mind; it does me just as much good to see her drink it."

Shortly after this a dose of castor oil was prepared for Katherine, and she poured it into her doll's mouth.

"Why Katherine," said her astonished mother, 'what did you do that for?"

"That's all right," Katherine replied, "it will do me just as much good if she drinks it."—Boston Herald

The Danger of Criticism.

If you simply cannot help criticising at least be careful in selecting your victim.

A magazine editor to whom O. Henry had promised a story many times without delivering it sat down one day and wrote him thus.

"My Dear O Henry—If I do not receive that story from you by noon today I am going to put on my No. 11 shoes and come down and kick you down your own stairs. I never fail to keep my promises."

Whereupon O. Henry replied.

"I, too, would keep my promises if I could do all my work with my feet."—Chicago Tribune.

The Battle of a Week.

The battle of a week was the great conflict at Tours in which Charles Martel overthrew the Saracens, A. D. 732. The members of the Saracen army are variously estimated at from 400,000 to 700,000 and the historians say that 375,000 were killed on the field. It is suspected that these figures are a gross exaggeration, but it is certain that few battles of history have been either so bloody or so decisive.

In the Mining Business.

"I think you said, Rastus, that you had a brother in the mining business in the west?"

"Yeh, boss, that's right."

"What kind of mining—gold mining, silver mining, copper mining?"

"No, sah, none o' those; calcimining."—Everybody's.

AMONG THE THEATRES

The Palace—Charleroi.

One of Richard Harding Davis' New York character stories, "Hefty Burke," was charmingly shown in photoplay by an Edison film at the Palace Theatre this week. "Hefty" Burke, a clean cut young Irish-American workingman, wins the affections of Mamie, a pretty young working girl, at an East Side ball. There are other suitors for Mamie's favor, but she prefers "Hefty," who lives in a water front boarding house. The latter, strolling along the wharf, rescues a handsome young central American senoretta, who falls overboard from a steamer loading with a cargo for her destination. On board the vessel "Hefty" discovers that a filibustering expedition is conspiring for a revolution, which is contrary to the neutrality laws of the United States. "Hefty" is pledged to silence, and the commander, who is the father of the senoretta rescued by "Hefty" follows the latter to his boarding house to induce him to join the expedition. "Hefty" refuses. It transpires that a reward of $5,000 is offered for information of the expedition, of which "Hefty" has told Mamie. The latter, jealous of the senoretta, tells of the reward to one of her other admirers, who starts out to inform the harbor police of the expedition. Mamie learns of her mistake, and tells "Hefty" what she has done. The latter rushes to the dock, and engages the attention of the would-be informer until the vessel clears the harbor. Louis Brusa, in illustrated songs, continue to entertain, as well as the excellent orchestra, which is one of the strong features of this popular theatre.

The Coyle—Charleroi

Good plays, like wine, improves with age. This is certainly true of that marvellously successful melodrama "Human Hearts" which comes to the Coyle Theatre, Thursday, January 12. The company to be seen in the play this season comprises all of last year's favorites, and wherever a part could be improved upon, the change has been made, and it is promised that never before has this beautiful play been so well presented. "Human Hearts" gives a pure, wholesome lesson that touches the heart-strings in the pathetic scenes and excites the risibilities in the humorous ones. The pathos and comedy are so well blended that the audience is in tears one moment and convulsed with laughter the next. The scenic equipment will be perfect in every detail, so it is said, and the management has done everything possible to insure a first-class perforance.

New Duquesne—Pittsburg.

That big footlight success, "In the Bishop's Carriage," which Channing Pollock dramatized from the celebrated romance of the same name by Miriam Michelson, is to be the highly interesting attraction at the Duquesne Theatre, next week. In this clever drama the Harry Davis Stock Players will offer a play that combines the exciting situations of robbery and midnight burglary, which made "Raffles" so intensely appealing, with the deep heart interest of the redemption of the soul of a young girl thief, which made "Leah Kleschna" so notable in its interpretaton by Mrs. Fiske. Nance Olden, the heroine of "In the Bishop's Carriage" is the victim of cruel circumstances. An orphan girl, she has been brought up in such a way as to become the associate of the thieves and crooks of a big city, and she fails to realize that her "profession" is not justified by events. She has a pal, a big brother, in Tom Dorgan. But a new interest suddenly comes into her life, and all through trying to escape the police, after picking a pocket of a watch, by dodging into the carriage of the Bishop. She learns for the first time that honesty is the best policy, but she finds it out through love. A young lawyer named Latimer discovers the secrets of her life and finally redeems her from her unhappy condition as a social outcast.

Julia Dean created the role of Nance Olden in the original production of "In The Bishop's Carriage," and Jessie Busley, (now with the New Theatre Company) starred in the part throughout the country. Helen Ware originated the part of the "tough girl," Mag Monaghan. In this dramatization of Miss Michelson's clever story, Channing Pollock has placed all the chief incidents and figures before the footlights with as deft skill as he did "The Pit" for Wilton Lackaye.

The Alvin—Pittsburg

Of all the plays in recent years dealing with detectives and thieves, none seems to have hit the popular fancy as well as Paul Armstrong's "Alias Jimmy Valentine" to be seen at the Alvin Theatre next week. The reason for this, no doubt, lies in the fact that "Alias Jimmy Valentine" has been sincerely converted through the love of a good girl, and his adventures in the play deal with his endeavors to evade the detectives and police who want him for what he has done. In other words, the audience, in sympathizing with one who has been a crook, is not condoning his offenses, but is encouraging him in his efforts toward reformation. The first act is laid in the warden's office of Sing Sing prison, and is a true, engrossing picture of a real prison life. "Alias Jimmy Valentine," the only man in America who could open a bank vault without tools or the combination, merely by the sense of touch, is serving a ten years' sentence for assault on a National Bank. Having been fortunate enough to render inestimable service to a group of influential people, he wins the gubernatorial pardon. Once out of prison, Jimmy takes another name gets a job as assistant cashier of a bank, and lives an honest life.

"Alias Jimmy Valentine" has the distinction of a two years' run at Wallack's Theatre, New York.

The Grand—Pittsburg

A definition of the word "vaudeville" is illumingly expressed by a glance through the program arranged for next week, beginning Monday afternoon, January 9, at the Grand. The various numbers in their individual variety and artistry and their collective strength epitomize the world's best vaudeville.

For example, Lillian Shaw, the gifted character comedian and singer, is among the artists engaged. Miss Shaw has no peer in her particular line of entertaining.

Edwin Stevens, supported by Tina Marshall, will appear in "A Night Off." This is a quaint, delicate little sketch concerning an old bachelor's affection for his young ward. Charles Semon, whose altruistic attention justifies the descriptive title of "The narrow fellow," will once more amuse and entertain with his monologue music.

Marshall Mongtomrey, the artistic ventriloquist, is coming for his maiden engagement in this city. Mr. Montgomery is generally referred to as being in a class with the Great Lester, which is tantamount to placing his among the world's greatest ventriloquial practioners.

Herzog's beautiful horses from the New York Hippodrome will be seen in an advanced exposition of high school manpevers.

Rice, Sully and Scot are a trio of acrobats who will cutup comic capers on horizontal bars. Moving picturses and a number of other high-class specialtites complete the bill.

The Nixon—Pittsburg

Otis Skinner, who comes to the Nixon week of January 9, has given to the stage a notable series of character creations, each of which he has so endowed with distinct individuality. From the austere warrior, Lanciotto, in "Francesca de Rimini," to the jovial care-free vagabond, in "The Harvester," from the ascetic priest, Abbe Daniel, in "The Duel" to the swaggering bully, Brideau, in "The Honor of the Family;" from the debonair Duc de Grammaont to the heroic Lazarre — these transitions in characterization would tax the resources of the greatest and most versatile of actors. Otis Skinner who has achieved his commanding position on the American stage by hard and conscientious endeavor, is able to present any role he may assume with scholarly distinction and expert skill.

Otis Skinner is a stage creator in the highest sense of the word. Last season he enhanced his fine group of stage protraits by a highly origical type, the loquacious barn stormer in Booth Tarkington's play "Your Humble Servant." This was a modern and up-to date piece of stage realism, but on his forthcoming appearance he will return to the romantic type of drama in which he gained his earliest renown as a star. In his new play, "Sire" he will impersonate an adventure and jack-of-all trades, Roulette by name, who poses as the Lost Dauphin, Louis XVII in his matirity. Playgoers who have admired Otis Skinner's previous characterizations are sure to find his latest creation equally delightful.

REINDEER IN LAPLAND.

They Furnish the People With Shelter, Clothing and Food.

Some people have said that the reindeer of the northern regions is to the inhabitants of those countries what the horse, cow and sheep together are to the dwellers in southern lands, and very probably they are right. What would the Laplander be were he deprived of his favorite? How could he travel without his pair of reindeer harnessed to his sledge?

The reindeer has large black hoofs, behind which are false or secondary hoofs; the result is that when running they make a clattering sound, which may be heard a good distance away. The reindeer has much endurance and takes a long journey without seeming tired, though it is only about four and a half feet in height and not very strong. Its horns are long and slender, with branched, rounded antlers, but they are not much used in combat, like those of some other deer.

The largest reindeer are found where the weather is coldest, and their color is lighter. Usually it is brown and white, but in the case of old animals the hair is sometimes quite white. From the skin of the reindeer the Laplanders get not only their clothes, but also bedding and tents; the milk is drunk and made into cheese and the flesh is also good to eat, the tongue and haunches being particularly liked. Pemmican, an important article of food, is made by pouring fat over the pounded meat and mixing them well together.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

BRAINY BABY.

John Stuart Mill Was a Genius at Three Years of Age.

At three years of age John Stuart Mill began the study of Greek, with "arithmetic as an evening relaxation."

At eight he began Latin, Euclid and algebra and had to act as tutor to the younger children. He was a stern and efficient tutor.

At twelve he began scholastic logic and political economy—the latter his main lifework.

At fourteen, while paying a long visit to Sir Samuel Bentham in southern France, he learned French as a relaxation from studying two or three hours before breakfast, five hours between breakfast and dinner and two or three in the evening. Being for the time master of his own hours and not subject to a stern father, he took lessons also in his spare hours in music, singing, dancing, fencing and riding, but never became proficient.

At sixteen Mill could speak in debate with adults with ease and freedom. At eighteen he contributed to the Westminster Review. At twenty-one he was made assistant in the India office and received a large salary for those days.

But Mill was bald at twenty-two. He did not marry until he was forty-five. He himself said: "I never was a boy. It is better to let nature have its own way."
